Lehigh in COSTA RICA
SUMMER 2014

Two great opportunities!

Service-Learning
Cost: $1,400 (tentative)
Approx. 2 Weeks in August 2014

This 12-day Environmental Community Service Project will be conducted in the San Luis Valley of Costa Rica, just below the famous Monteverde Cloud Forest Reserve. Lehigh students participating in this program would be involved in ecological research & reforestation efforts in the Pájaros Campana Biological Corridor which forms part of the Mesoamerican Biological Corridor that stretches from southern Mexico through Panama, critical to preserving biodiversity in this region.

Internship
Cost: $3,100 (tentative)
July - August 2014

Spend 5 weeks on an international internship placement with NGOs focused on conservation and sustainability. (Students can choose to spend the entire internship working for a single NGO or divide their time between 2 different NGOs.) Interns will begin the program at Lehigh by participating in a series of modular “boot camp” workshops conducted during the preceding spring semester. The last 2 weeks of the internship program will be held in conjunction with the above Service-Learning project at the University of Georgia’s Costa Rica campus in San Luis.

* ELIGIBILITY:
  - Spanish preferred
  - EES, ES & BIO majors preferred

APPLICATION DEADLINE:
February 15, 2014

Visit our website for more details:
www.lehigh.edu/studyabroad/lehhighincosta.html